Annual Yachting Draws Crowd to City's Dock

Yacht Club Tells Plan

Boats were drawn today to the rear dock behind Yacht Club's pier to load the Alaska’s new invader, the Point Woronzoff. The large ship from Rotterdam is due in the harbor for a short period later this month.

A city delegation will visit the vessel this Friday and Saturday. The delegation will include Admiral Charles E. Harned, former Anchorage Mayor Ken Hinchey, Mayor Robert A. MacKinlay, and other officials.

Tanker Is In Port Here

The Swedish tanker Pan Gotland is loading at the Port of Anchorage's east dock. The ship will carry the fuel from the vessel's tanks to moveable hose. The fuel is needed to support the city's infrastructure.

Asks City Take Over

The Secretary of the Navy has requested that the city take over the maintenance and operation of the vessel. The city will be responsible for the vessel's upkeep and maintenance.

Air Crossroads of the World

May 1963

A mature problem facing the Navy today is the heavy load of administrative duties. The problem is exacerbated by the lack of personnel to handle the duties. The solution is to centralize the administration of the Navy, allowing for a more efficient use of personnel.

Municipal Bulletin

City of Anchorage

Horned & Hinchey To Attend D.C. Convention

Capt. Harvey H. Horned, D.C. and former Anchorage Mayor Ken Hinchey, will attend the D.C. Convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which is scheduled for May 1963.

YACHT CLUB INVATION

COAST GUARD NOTES

LAND, HO, MATES, CALLING FROM THE US ICY INLET

Lee Fur, an admiral in the Anacortes Outfall Sewer Yacht Club, stands on a sturdy piece of ice while admiring the scenery in Cook Inlet. Action occurred in the club's annual regatta tom. Admiral Fur, left the Port of Anchorage for Homer last March and was reported to be on the way to the Inlet. Admiral Fur and his crew were reported to be on the way to the Inlet.

JET FUEL COMES ABOARD

The Swedish tanker Pan Gotland put into the Port of Anchorage earlier this week to unload a shipment of jet fuel. The fuel will be used to support the city's infrastructure.

Navy Ship Is To Visit Here

The Secretary of the Navy has invited the city to host the Navy ship for a visit. The ship will be in port for a week, providing an opportunity for the citizens to experience life on a military vessel.